HOW DID THE FUND PERFORM LAST YEAR AND WHAT AFFECTED ITS PERFORMANCE?

The Shenkman Capital Floating Rate High Income Fund (the “Fund”) modestly underperformed the Morningstar LSTA US B- Ratings and Above Loan Index (the “Index”) for the twelve months ended September 30, 2025 (the “Period”). The Index returned 7.23% in the Period, buoyed by elevated coupons and robust CLO formations. The period was marked by a series of idiosyncratic factors within the benchmark universe, such as survivorship bias, evidenced by the Cubic Corp. downgrade and the fraud-related bankruptcy of First Brands, both of which dropped out of the benchmark, detracting from relative performance.

Over the Last-Twelve-Months period, the Fund outperformed the Bloomberg U.S. Aggregate Bond Index which returned 2.88% for the period. Leveraged loans outperformed the Bloomberg U.S. Aggregate Bond Index over the 12-month period ended September 30, 2025, primarily due to lower duration exposure and strong carry in a persistently higher-for-longer rate environment. As Treasury yields remained elevated and rate volatility weighed on longer-duration fixed-rate assets, the loan market benefited from rising base rates and robust coupon income that more than offset modest credit spread widening. Technical support from CLO demand and limited net new supply further bolstered prices, while fundamentals remained stable, with default rates well below historical averages and corporate earnings resilient despite slower growth. In contrast, the investment-grade credit segments within the Aggregate were pressured by duration drag and wider spreads, leaving leveraged loans as one of the best-performing credit asset classes over the period.

Top Contributors

↑ Positive security selection in Software & Services and Utilities positively contributed to relative performance.

Top Detractors

↓ The top detractors for the period included the Fund’s out-of-Index allocation to high yield bonds, which underperformed leveraged loans for the period. Additionally, negative security selection in BB-rated loans detracted from the Fund’s performance, but was partially offset by positive selection in single-B loans.

POSITIONING

We believe the Fund is well-positioned, maintaining a bias toward higher quality loans with appropriate industry diversification and a conservative credit profile. The top sector weighting was unchanged with Software & Services remaining the largest exposure, while the allocation to Health Care Equipment & Services increased and Consumer Services exposure was reduced. The Fund’s rating profile remained largely unchanged, with a modest increase in single B and CCC & Below-rated loans while reducing exposures in BB and BBB & Above rated loans.
